Field Trip

Jim & Sara Young Studio

The September 18th ANA meeting will be held at the studio of Jim and Sarah Young. For those who wish to carpool we will meet at the Jones Health and Wellness Center and leave from there at 6:00 pm.

For those that want to drive and/or live close to the Rogers area, the driving directions can be found at Jim Young's web site:
www.vanhollowpottery.com

The evening will consist of a short business meeting followed by some food prepared by Jim and Sarah, and pottery demo in the studio. I hope you will come and enjoy the great studio and wonderful lake view at the Young's home. Since Jim has graciously offered to prepare food with his pottery, I would appreciate it if everyone would RSVP via e-mail as to whether you will be attending. Kathy Mayhue at kkat1123@cox.net

Conservator, Rick Parker

at August 21, 2008 ANA Meeting

Rick Parker, owner of Parker Conservation, Inc. of Gentry, AR, kept the members guessing as he showed us an icon painted on an old wood backing. Was it real? The icon was a forgery. One revealing clue was the white gesso backing.

Mr Parker spoke of his extensive training and was accepted for an opening at the Smithsonian Institute. The oldest piece he has worked on was 3500 to 4000 years old. He has cared for Goya's work and most of the Old Masters. He believes artists are not taught about survivability for their work. He presented a slide show of a painting in the process of cleaning and repair. Many technical, tedious stages and analysis of paints and varnishes are used. Damaged pieces in the canvas are rewoven thread by thread. A book, "Saving Stuff", by Don Williams and Louisa Jagger was recommended. More information about the problems of using zinc whitepaint can be found at the naturalpigments.com website. Pastel artists were cautioned not to use fixatives. He went on to explain why oil paintings should not be varnished until six months to a year because of chemical reactions between varnish and paint.

Secrets from the Masters:

Painting the Clothed Figure

Little Rock, Arkansas

October 31 - November 3, 2008

Friday - Monday

9:00 am-4:00 pm

The secrets used by classical through contemporary painting Masters will be introduced and demonstrated: the proportions and structure of the head and figure; monochromatic underpainting to establish the composition, planes, features, and light and dark masses; selecting and mixing colors on the palette; layering and blending naturalistic skin tones on the canvas; capturing the warm, cool and neutral variations, and the transparency of the flesh; understanding folds and drapery, painting different materials in clothing in a painterly manner; alla prima brush and palette knife techniques; interpreting the effects of light and atmosphere; and helpful studio tips. The workshop is open to artists of all levels. Demonstrations will be in oil. Instructor: Craig Srebniak, www.csfineart.com
